POND TO TELL OF NOTED PRODUCTION

Vivid Story of Oberammergau Passion Play Subject of Lecture Tuesday.

In his public lecture on "The Passion Play of Oberammergau," to be delivered at the high school auditorium next Tuesday at 8 p. m. under the auspices of 121: class, Alonzo W. Pond, Jamesville, will tell of his personal experiences as a witness of the celebrated religious production in 1922. The village of Oberammergau, which means the Upper Ammer Valley, is located on the Am-mer river in the Tyrol mountains, Bavaria, Germany, about 75 miles south of Munich.

Mr. Pond visited the village, a place of about 2,000 inhabitants, and made an extensive study of the play, bringing back a great amount of information which he has put into the form of a lecture.

225,000 Spectators in 1922
Mr. Pond estimates that between 200,000 and 225,000 saw the play in 1922. Sixty-five performances were given in the auditorium, which seats 5,000.

"To be sure of a seat one was obliged to stay in the village the night before," said Mr. Pond. "Board and room costs were not high when you consider that the little village was obliged to care for from 4,000 to 6,000 extra visitors every Sunday.
Admission in 1922 was 100 marks for a first class seat, and at the time I saw the play that amounted to 22 cents. As the mark went down I believe it got as low as 10 cents.

"The play is given in German but one can buy official texts in French and English, as well as German. It is a community affair with about 500 taking part as actors. There are 50 in the orchestra, 46 in the choir, besides stage hands, ticket sellers and property men.

Movie Companies Barred
"There are movies in the life of Christ, but a movie camera has never caught the play of Oberammergau," continued Mr. Pond. "In 1922 one American company offered $1,000,000 for the picture rights, but it was refused."

Milwaukee Musicians Entertain.
 Four Milwaukee artists presented a delightful musical before the Mac-Powell club, Thursday afternoon, at the Colonial club subsequent to the club luncheon which was attended by 50 members. The program of Thursday was a return compliment for the recent which members of the Mac-Powell club gave a month ago before the Milwaukee Musical club. Mrs. Paul Gillan, contralto; Mrs. Mark Place, violinist; Mrs. Gustav Peterson, piano; and Mrs. E. W. Koppelman, accompanist presented the following program:

Suite, violin and piano. Introduction, "Allegro Moderato," Mrs. Place and Mrs. Peterson. "Deep River," Harbison, "The Old Ark & a Mover," the Union, and "John Home," from the New World Symphony, Dvorak, arranged by William A. Fisher. "The Change Too," Harbison and "Twilight," Gleason, sung by Mrs. Gillan. Theme and Variations, Paderewski, played by Mrs. Peterson. "Melodie," Gleason, and "Waltz in A Major," Brahms, played by Mrs. Place. "Four Years Old," Lohr, "Waltz in C Major," Gleason, and "Twilight," Gleason, sung by Mrs. Gillan. Theme and Variations, Paderewski, played by Mrs. Peterson.

Mrs. Gillan showed a voice of beautiful quality, possessing warmth of tone and accuracy of pitch. "Waltz in C Major" was sung with extraordinary facility and accuracy of bowing in her violin numbers, which was entirely free from affection. She is not a stranger to dancing, the music lover, having been a violin teacher at Milton for several years with local young people as her pupils. As a pianist, Mrs. Peterson carried weight with her auditors by her assured control of resources. With music in Milwaukee as an accompanist, Mrs. Koppelman contributed much to the program with her piano accompaniments which enhanced each number a hundredfold.

Luncheon was served at 1 p. m. at one large round table with several smaller ones. Large mounds of jonquils, narcissi, hyacinths, and sweet peas surrounded with yellow candles in silver holders decorated the tables.

Mrs. J. L. Wilcox was chairman of the refreshments committee. She was assisted by Mrs. Lester Cunningham and Mrs. W. H. Skiles. On the reception committee were Mrs. John M. Warsaw — The flood situation in Poland has grown considerably worse, with most of the rivers, over their banks. The Vistula is the most affected.

DEVOLVES UPON TOWN

Midium — Under orders of supervisor of adjoining towns, dividing a town line highway and assuming a part of it to be maintained by each town, in which no mention is made of joint maintenance of a bridge, the reconstruction of such bridge devolves upon the town to which the part of the highway in which it is located is assigned. Mom's strength came back with a rush, ignoring the open door of the room, she rushed into the hall to the room where her youngest lay. A lamp was on the table beside the bed. She took it up and held it over the wounded man.

"You've done a good job of bandaging, Bill," she said, "but I don't see what you've done for the wound. It's a little pale, but I'll be good as new, the wound!"

Mom turned on the lamp, the lamp chimney shaking in unison with her three chins. "Here, who you calling a skunk? You stop it, you hear! I won't have you calling him names!"

"All the same, what he is, is a skunk," Mom said, "and I'll be good as new, the wound!"

"He and that Hank came in and caught me after I had taken out, and if it hadn't been for Bill, I'd have been in a bad way. I don't want to think what would have happened to me. They were drunk, both of 'em."

"That's it, they were drunk. They didn't mean any harm."

"Oh, Mom, you're impossible! Don't be such a fool! Those boys are as bad as they can be. You're a liar, and I'll thank you to keep your trap shut. You get— Say, who's Hank?"

"Oh, he's outside somewhere. I think he's taking to his heels."

"There's a lot of trouble here to suit me. What's he got to do with it? Wasn't it you hurt him?"

"Well, no, Mom, not exactly. That is, I didn't hurt him much. I may have scratched him some, I think I did. But I didn't really do him any damage. But you see when he tried to shoot Bill, Mom, Bill he used a knife on him, and that's how Slim got hurt. Tell me, Mom, where's that lost cabin place where Dad's hanging out?"

"I'm not telling you anything more, you snake in the grass! You're the cause of all our troubles. If it hadn't been for you and that damn lover of yours, Bill Dorr, Pap

Are Women 100 Per Cent Efficient?

How many women do you know who are one hundred per cent efficient? That means a woman who is as strong as a man, who is as healthy as a man, who is as beautiful as a man, who is as intelligent as a man, who is as efficient as a man. Women in this condition should let Lady E. Dickinson's Vegetable Compound rebuild and restore them to normal healthy condition which will make them one hundred per cent efficient and life worth living. There are women in every section of this country who testify to its merits.

For the Cough That Sticks

Common Cough Remedy Won't Help—Make Your Own.

Cheap and Best

For any kind of a cough, but especially for the stubborn one that persists and keeps you awake nights this home made cough mixture will quickly loosen the phlegm, allay the inflammation and stop the cough. You can make it yourself at home in two minutes by following directions.

Get from McCreck & Sons or any druggist, one ounce of Paraffin (double strength)—to this add a little granulated sugar and enough water to make one half pint; that's all there is to it. Give children five drops.

Like a soothing, healing poultice, one coat of this mixture spread on the throat, this causes the most stubborn cough to ease almost instantly. No ordinary slow-acting cough syrup contains this expensive ingredient.

IF BACK HURTS FLUSH KIDNEYS

Drink Plenty Water and Take Glass of Salt Before Breakfast—Occasionally.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to feed your stomach with a lot of drugs that irritate the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Take a glass of salt water before breakfast and keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salt, which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulate them to their normal activity.

The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 600 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of good water you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Epsom salt. Take a teaspoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and morning for a few days and your kidneys may then be fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapefruit and lemon juice combined with lithium, and has been used for years to help clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in the system so they are not a source of irritation, thus often relieving the backache.

Just salts is inexpensive; can't hurt; makes a delightful effervescent drink; water drink which every one should keep on hand and use for help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try that; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your backache and backache. By all means have your kidneys flushed once a year.

Dinner Stories

A small boy running on the pavement snatched his foot and fell. As he was crying rather loudly, an elderly gentleman remarked sympathetically:

"Then," answered the little boy, between sobs, "I won't cry tomorrow."

The great harriester, John Phillip Curran, was a noted wit, but he sometimes met his match. Curran once examined a hostler who was a witness in a dispute over a horse trade. Curran desired to break down the credibility of the witness by making him contradict himself. In the end, the witness' common sense, reasoning and good nature were not to be overruled.

"Finally Curran, in a towering rage, exclaimed: 'You are impossible!'

"The truth is not to be got from you, for it is not in you. I see the villain in your face."

"That's all right," replied the witness, "the face must be pretty close and shiny if it can reflect like that."

Tommy had scammed his wrist and didn't want to go to school.

"That year was a pretty hard one," said Tommy's mother. "I won't prevent you from attending classes," said the boy's mother. "But I'll take a hand at this point."

"Now speak up, son," commanded his father. "Let's have the real reason. Why don't you want to go to school with a sprained wrist?"

"Too many boys owe me a kicking."

True Story of Woodrow Wilson

fact was reviewed by the President. Later on during the summer months the home in Cornish, New Hampshire, was opened again for the Wilson household and Miss Jones and Mrs. Galt went there to escape the heat of Washington. "The President spent many weeks at Cornish during the summer of 1915 and when he returned in the autumn Washington generally had learned of his infatuation for Mrs. Galt.

Members of the Cabinet and people in official life began to wonder what would be the effect of the President's engagement on his political fortunes but no one had the temerity to advise Mr. Wilson on his personal affairs as it was recognized that the new mistress of the White House would be able later to wield both power and influence against anyone who might earn her disfavor. Secretary Lane is credited with having remarked to some of his colleagues in the Cabinet that Mr. Wilson would lose his popularity if he remarried because the country had become intensely sympathetic with him in his loneliness. Secretary Tamm with his keen vision of political life shared to some extent this view but he knew that the President was more interested in the woman he loved than in holding political office. There is abundant evidence that Mr. Wilson did not care as much about a second term as did the leaders of the Democratic party who wanted to see the administration continued and that Mr. Wilson would have easily swallowed his disappointment if he had failed of re-nomination or reelection. The truth is that his sense of mind was such that he did not enjoy public office and ardently hoped to be released from responsibility. He was a human being first and an executive machine second. As between a life of freedom and public office, there is no doubt that Mr. Wilson would have chosen the former if he had been able consistently to do so.

The months of Mr. Wilson's courtship of Mrs. Galt involved a bit-up in his history of previous years in the White House. He did not work as long at his desk. He found diversion in the animated conversations with his fiancée. In the inner circle of Washington rumors started that the President's desk was piled high with unattended business. There was a noticeable delay at one time in the dispatch of a note to Great Britain protesting against violation of neutral rights. Rumor had it that Mr. Wilson was not concentrating on the note but in this respect at least the reports were unfounded. Mr. Wilson chose to delay that note because a Cabinet crisis in Great Britain was beginning to develop and he did not wish to do anything that would add complications to Great Britain's internal political turmoil. Premier Asquith and Sir Edward Grey were at the helm. Mr. Wilson had for both of them at the time a warm admiration. Besides, Walter Hines Page, the American Ambassador had insisted in his letters to the President that the United States tone down its protestations to Great Britain.

Mr. Wilson finally sent the note—not by cable—but by messenger who carried special instructions to Ambassador Page. In the autumn of the year the controversy between the President and Ambassador Page reached a climax. One Sunday afternoon word came that Ambassador Page had resigned. The author who was at that time in charge of the news relating to American neutrality for the Associated Press at Washington sought to verify the report of Mr. Page's resignation but neither Secretary Tamm nor any member of the Cabinet knew anything about it. The Associated Press had received a private cable from London but as usual did not print any news of this kind until verification could be obtained. The author, of course, did not know how long the secret would be kept from him, of course, that competitors might obtain it and score a "heat" if it were disclosed. The President could not be reached—he had gone to the home of Mrs.

Galt on 20th Street. Across the street, two secret service men lounged against a tree in an all day vigil. Neither one would carry a message into the house. The idea of disturbing the afternoon social call of the President of the United States was dismissed by them as absurd. The telephone operator at the White House switched board, though a private line to the 20th Street home of Mrs. Galt had been connected, would not disturb the President. The author perched a stool to the President telling him of the sensational developments and waited outside hoping that somebody might emerge from the Galt home and carry a message inside. The President spent the afternoon and evening there. Finally Dr. Cary T. Grayson appeared on the scene and with his customary courtesy took the note and a few minutes later returned with the answer. "Mr. Page has not resigned."

For a long time this episode was unexplained because the man who sent the cable from London actually read a copy of the letter of resignation written by Mr. Page and knew of an exchange of cables between the President and Ambassador Page relative to the letter.

But Mr. Wilson did not accept the resignation—hence to his mind it was just as if Mr. Page had not offered to relinquish the post. And the President saw to reason at that time to disturb the delicate situation which existed by revealing the friction he was having with the embassy at London. It is a fact, however, that Mr. Wilson did for a time consider accepting the resignation and offering the ambassadorship to Great Britain to Cleveland H. Dodge, his classmate at Princeton, who, however, did not care to undertake the mission.

Shortly after this incident Mr. Wilson called in his private secretary and told him that he could announce the engagement of the President to Mrs. Norman Galt. Secretary Tamm, multy, still mindful of the political dangers of an early marriage, hoped the President might postpone the announcement believing that it should be deferred until after the 1916 campaign. But Mr. Wilson would not listen to it, and Secretary Tamm, like a faithful friend, promptly accepted the situation and loyally sought to set the stage for a favorable response by the press to the news he was about to disclose. For many hours he labored over the form of the announcement and the necessary data which would give to the newspapers the best impression possible of the romance and would completely sweep aside the malicious charges of those who might be disappointed over the remarriage of the President fifteen months after the death of his first wife. Mr. Tamm talked with the newspaper men about the rise in the President's spirits and his general improvement in health together with the fact that all the members of the Wilson household, including the daughters, were fond of Mrs. Galt, all this had its effect and made the wedding pass without incident and without political ill-effect.

Mr. Wilson's disinclination to postpone his engagement—he never for a moment considered it seriously—was convincing evidence of the strength of his affection for the fascinating widow. He cared nothing about the political phases of it—he was in love. Those who knew him best realized that it meant a preparation to do greater things. For he was the type of man who lived on feminine inspiration.

Don't cough at night!

AVOID wakefulness by taking Dr. Bell's Pine-Tar Honey just before going to bed. It loosens phlegm, soothes irritation in throat and chest and prevents the exhausting coughing spasms. Made of just the medicines that up-to-date doctors recommend—combined with the old-time favorite, pine-tar honey. Its taste is pleasant. Keep Dr. Bell's on hand for all the family.

All druggists. Be sure to get the genuine. DR. BELL'S Pine-Tar Honey
